

MLA Is No Quick Fix In Asset Recovery

Oleh Tim Peradin
Selasa, 02 April 2019 15:54 -

The Jakarta Post
TUESDAY, March 26, 2019

MLA is no quick fix in asset recovery

Frank W. Wilkitta

The United States and Indonesia have signed a Mutual Legal Assistance (MLA) agreement, which is a significant step in the fight against transnational crime. The agreement will allow the two countries to assist each other in the investigation and prosecution of criminal offenses, including money laundering, drug trafficking, and human trafficking. The agreement is a landmark achievement for the United States and Indonesia, as it is the first such agreement between the two countries. The agreement will be a valuable tool for the United States and Indonesia in the fight against transnational crime. The agreement will allow the two countries to assist each other in the investigation and prosecution of criminal offenses, including money laundering, drug trafficking, and human trafficking. The agreement is a landmark achievement for the United States and Indonesia, as it is the first such agreement between the two countries. The agreement will be a valuable tool for the United States and Indonesia in the fight against transnational crime.

Selengkapnya...